

WHY CARNEGIE, THE MILLIONAIRE, SENT FOR BRYAN.

Wanted to Hear from His Own Lips His Views on Imperialism.

HAILS HIM AS A SAVIOR.
Recognizes in Him the Only Man in the Country Who Can Rescue
It from Its Dangers.

HEARS DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINES.

DR. PARKHURST AND VAN DYKE ALSO SIT at the Feet of the Man
They Once Roundly Denounced.

"I want you to come to see me. I would go to you, but am sick and unable to leave the house. I believe you to be the only man in the country to-day who can save us from the twin evils of imperialism and militarism." From a letter written by Andrew Carnegie to William Jennings Bryan.

Mr. Bryan's hurried visit to this city a week ago was rendered memorable by the fact that three prominent public men, all of whom opposed him bitterly in 1896, expressed an ardent desire to see him and hear from his own lips his views on the national issues of the hour.

The three men referred to were Andrew Carnegie, the millionaire steel manufacturer; the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, pastor of the Madison Square Presbyterian Church; and the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church, at Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street.

Mr. Bryan made no mention during his short stay of having visited these gentlemen, and his friends were equally reticent. The story leaked out yesterday, however, and created no little excitement in view of the fact that Mr. Bryan is a candidate for the Presidency of the United States he was frequently and roundly denounced by these very men.

The anxiety of Mr. Carnegie to see and talk with Mr. Bryan was particularly urgent. He wrote to the latter three times before the desired interview was brought about, and in his last letter he declared Mr. Bryan "to be the only man in the country who can save us from the twin evils of imperialism and militarism." Two of the letters were received by Mr. Bryan before he reached this city, but he was not able at that time to arrange to see Mr. Carnegie.

As soon as Mr. Carnegie learned that Mr. Bryan was at the Barthold Hotel he sent him a letter and a messenger. The interview took place at Mr. Carnegie's residence, No. 5 West Fifty-fifth street, and lasted a couple of hours.

There were no witnesses present, but it was learned from a reliable source that the conversation was mainly confined to the topics of imperialism and militarism, which, it is said, Mr. Carnegie declared to be the most imminent dangers now confronting the great Republic.

Mr. Carnegie, it is said, declared that the first step toward the destruction of the Republic would be taken when the Government, in order to acquire new territory, should establish the precedent of maintaining a great standing army.

Mr. Carnegie characterized the scheme as a Frankenstein, which would one day surely arise in its might and crush its creator. The increase of the number of the country's regular soldiers would, he said, introduce a new element into the country—an element which in the future would have to be reckoned with.

Danger in Great Army.
The regular, he said, was no better than a machine. Unlike the volunteer soldier he did not go to war from motives of patriotism, but because he was ordered to do so. The only thing he knew was to obey orders. The only safety was to keep the army down, but in such condition that it could be expanded in time of war. It should be backed by a national reserve thoroughly trained and ready for service at a moment's notice.

Such, in brief, were some of the things said by Mr. Carnegie at this memorable interview, and Mr. Bryan frankly admitted that in them was embodied good Democratic doctrine. He reiterated his belief that the policy of imperialism, if pursued, would be gravely dangerous to the republic and expressed his satisfaction that Mr. Carnegie agreed with this view.

The interviews with Drs. Parkhurst and Van Dyke were no less remarkable as they played a complete change of feeling on the part of these eminent clergymen.

On September 27, 1896, when the feeling on the money question was running high, Dr. Parkhurst thus denounced Bryan and his followers from the pulpit of his Madison Square Presbyterian Church:

"The business of the nation is done on credit. Credit is based on mutual confidence. Mutual confidence does not exist today, and attempts are being made, deliberate and not bloodless, to destroy what

Scene at the Seventy-first Regiment Court-Martial.

The captains on trial for publishing charges of cowardice against superior officers in Cuba withdrew their plea of not guilty, but maintained that their action constituted no offense. The trial ended with a secret verdict and the appointment of a Board of Inquiry to discover the facts concerning the conduct of the officers against whom the charges are made.

Little of it remains. I dare in God's pulpit to brand such attempts as accused and treacherous.

Dr. Van Dyke was no less uncompromising and outspoken. Nevertheless, these two men met William J. Bryan upon a common ground of sympathy last Sunday, and listened eagerly to the gospel of Democracy as it fell from his lips. Mr. Bryan called upon Drs. Parkhurst and Van Dyke last Sunday afternoon by invitation.

Dr. Parkhurst's Hot Talk.
The talk at Dr. Parkhurst's is described as very warm indeed. Dr. Parkhurst possesses the gift of forcible expression, and it is said he handled the McKinley Administration without gloves.

He lashed the Republican party for its greed and selfishness. He characterized McKinley and his Cabinet as "those weaklings at Washington." In one of his denunciations he said: "Those weaklings at Washington are forever crying of destiny, destiny, destiny, assuring us that this policy of imperialism is the destiny of the great Republic."

There is no such thing as destiny, except in so far as it is every man's destiny to do his duty, and his whole duty, to day, to-morrow and as long as he lives.

Mr. Bryan's friends declare that these three interviews were the most remarkable ever held by a defeated candidate for the Presidency of the United States, especially in view of the fact that these men were among his bitterest enemies two years ago.

LETTER CARRIER'S SUICIDE.
Lottie Horan, Discharged from the Post Office, Ends His Life.

Lottie Horan, thirty-two years old, of No. 207 East Eighty-ninth street, formerly employed as a carrier in Station Y, of the Post Office, at Sixty-eighth street and Third avenue, committed suicide yesterday morning by shooting himself with a revolver. He was carried from his home to the Presbyterian Hospital, but died a few minutes after reaching the table.

Horan had worked as a carrier since 1888, but four weeks ago was discharged for neglect of duty, caused by his drinking habits. He could get no other work, and he grew despondent.

He had a wife and four children, all under seventeen years of age. When his wife asked him what he was going to do, he replied: "I don't know." He then walked to an inner room, took a revolver he had bought for the purpose from a drawer and shot himself.

GAS METERS BLEW UP.
Fire Foreman Hurt When He Went to Fight the Blaze.

A series of gas explosions was caused by a leaking meter in the cellar of the fire-station treatment at No. 808 Second avenue at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Assistant Foreman John Howe, of Engine Company No. 21, who went into the cellar with two men with a line of hose, was seriously injured by three explosions which occurred just after he had entered the cellar.

The explosion was caused by twelve families, and as many gas meters were ranged on a shelf in the cellar. An employee of the Consolidated Gas Company went into the cellar and found a fire alarm. The blast set fire to the ceiling and melted the lead around the joints of the pipes. This caused the more explosion.

COURT MARTIAL OF 71ST MEN ENDS

Secret Verdict in Trial of Captains Meeks and Bleeker.

COURT OF INQUIRY NOW.

It Will Meet To-night at the Twenty-second Regiment's Armory.

The court martial of Captain Anthony J. Bleeker and Captain William F. Meeks, of the Seventy-first Regiment, on charges growing out of a statement published by them of the regiment's history in Cuba, ended last night. No testimony was taken. The trial concluded with short arguments by former Judge Advocate Henry S. Van Duzer, representing the accused men, and by Edward M. Groat, Judge Advocate of the court.

A court of inquiry will meet to-night to investigate the charges that have been made against Colonel Downs, Lieutenant Colonel Smith and Major Whittle. Three hundred members of the Seventy-first were present at the second session of the court-martial. As soon as the court assembled Mr. Van Duzer withdrew the plea of not guilty for both of the men and entered the plea of guilty, with the reservation that the facts as charged constituted no offense.

The article accused Colonel Downs, Lieutenant Colonel Smith and Major Whittle of cowardice in that fact was upon the entire regiment. They knew that discredit had been brought upon them by the action of the mighty few. They had seen the privates in the ranks and Goldsborough battalion and Peck's battalion go to the front and fight bravely and well. A sense of duty drove them on and to them they were silent. Yet for making them tell the truth, ninety per cent of the regiment were restored to the Seventy-first. These officers realized that only by the publication of the truth could the honor of the regiment and the National Guard be restored. Yet for making this statement upon the regiment they have lived so long they are to be punished for a technical breach of discipline. They did what they thought was their duty, and if they erred it was an error of judgment.

Major Groat's reply was devoted entirely to the technical breach of the regulations. The court's sealed verdict will be sent through Major-General Roe to the Governor of the State for review. He has the power to reverse or confirm the decision. It is thought generally in the regiment that the two captains will be formally restored to the regiment for a technical breach of the regulations.

The court of inquiry will be made up as follows: Colonel Samuel M. Wood, Sixty-fifth Regiment; Colonel Franklin Bartlett, Twenty-second Regiment; Colonel William H. Lloyd, Second Regiment, and Lieut.-Colonel Charles J. Buchanan, Judge Advocate.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.
Are You Prepared? If Not, Some Valuable Advice Is Volunteered to You.

An epidemic of grip is upon America that is causing a vast amount of sickness and frequent deaths. Are you prepared? If not, you should not wait a moment.

The body is in so bad a condition when grip attacks it that it must have help. It needs assistance; it requires stimulation; it must have it. Ordinary stimulation will not do. It must be of a medicinal kind.

Prof. Joseph Parish says: "We know that alcohol will steady the heart, slow the pulse, warm the skin, calm excitement, and we ought to use it." This is all true, but in case of the grip you require in addition something medicinal; something that will do more than this; something that will make you well.

The United States Government acknowledges that there is but one medicinal whiskey in America. It acknowledges that by its certificate and its stamp. That whiskey which stands on a plane by itself far above the ordinary whiskey, is Duffy's Pure Malt.

It has been known to the people of America for twenty years. There has never been a case of grip which it has not either cured or checked.

It is today relieving thousands who would otherwise be carried on the swift current of disease toward death. It will certainly help you if you have the slightest symptom of a cold, chills, grip or pneumonia.

Bear this carefully in mind and do not delay.

ASK CONGRESS TO IMPROVE HARBOR.

Delegation from City Commercial Bodies Will Go to Washington.

WANT DEEPER CHANNELS.

Will Urge Cut Through Sandy Hook Bar 2,000 Feet Wide and Forty Feet Deep.

The leading commercial bodies of this city have appointed committees to represent them before the River and Harbor Committee of the House of Representatives at Washington on Thursday, December 22. In the matter of deepening and widening the channels in New York Harbor.

The committees appointed are constituted as follows: From the Chamber of Commerce, A. Foster Higgins, Vernon H. Brown and Samuel D. Coykendall; from the Produce Exchange, Thomas A. McElroy, Gus Heye and Evan Thomas; from the steamship companies, Gustav H. Schwab, of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, Chairman of the Steamship Companies Committee, C. A. Griscom, Jr., of the American Line, Oswald Sanderson, of the Wilson Line, Emil L. Boas, of the Hamburg-American Line, and Captain A. H. Corne, president of the Old Dominion Steamship Company; from the Board of Marine Underwriters, Clifford A. Hand, chairman, and Walter R. T. Jones; from the Merchants' Association, William F. King, president of that association, ex-Mayor William L. Strong, of the Board of Directors, John W. Ambrose, N. Boyard Cutting, U. D. Eddy, S. C. Mead and William R. Corwin.

The members of these committees held a meeting at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, and ex-Mayor William L. Strong, of the Merchants' Association, was elected chairman of the entire delegation. This delegation will ask Congress that the east channel across the Sandy Hook bar shall be selected as the channel to be improved for the purpose of furnishing a main shipping channel outside the Narrows, because it will be the most direct and shortest route between the Chesapeake and the Atlantic, and will also make its depth at low tide shall be made forty feet, and its width 2,000 feet.

The delegation will also apply to Congress for the deepening and widening of the present Bay Ridge and Red Hook channels, which extend along the Brooklyn shore, from the Narrows up to Governor's Island, so as to afford passage along the Brooklyn shore for the deepest draught seagoing vessels from the Narrows up into the East River.
